

Online interview with international applicants who are winners of the international “Open Doors” Olympiad

An interview is conducted with the aim of assessing an applicant's level of preparedness to master the interdisciplinary program “Politics. Economics. Philosophy,” level of English, their actual motivation, as well as to receive comments and clarifications from an applicant on their academic interests, research experience, and expectations from the program. An applicant will be asked to describe possible research directions during their studies in one of the tracks of the Master's program “Politics. Economics. Philosophy”. It is also expected that an applicant will be able to convincingly connect their specific grounds of interest in studying at the Master's program (indicating their preferred track of studies) with their current and possible future professional activities.

The duration of an interview is not regulated, but it should not be more than 30 minutes.

An interview is conducted online. Technical, network or any other issues are to be resolved prior to the meeting. Failure to connect on time after the meeting was agreed upon without prior notice, or continuing technical issues during the interview, will lead to the application being withdrawn from consideration by the PEP team.
